ANNUAL REPORT 2022

IMPROVING HEALTH & WELL-BEING
THROUGH MEDITATIVE EXERCISE

DIRECTOR'S STATEMENT

2022 was a year of steady progress. We continued to increase public awareness of Tai Chi through classes, community events, and building mutually beneficial partnerships.

We were able to resume Tai Chi classes in person following State of California COVID-19 safety guidelines. Our Board of Directors and members-at-large met weekly on Zoom to refine our plans for the Redding Tai Chi Meditation Garden.

An important decision the Board made this year was to use stamped concrete instead of flagstone in our design. This will reduce our project estimate from $225,000 to $175,000 and save over $50,000 in cost.

Looking forward, we continue to work toward our goal to provide the North State with a multi-use public Tai Chi court and promote Tai Chi as a healthy, meditative exercise that can be practiced by people of all ages and abilities.

We post regular updates on reddingtaichimg.org or email me at taichigarden@reddingtaichi.com

MISSION STATEMENT

Redding Tai Chi Meditation Garden is a 501(c)(3) non-profit charitable organization created to fund and build a Tai Chi court for meditative exercise. The purpose of this project is to foster good health, relaxation, peace, and to reduce emotional trauma in our community. Our project will create opportunities to educate people about Tai Chi and to promote it as a healthy exercise while respecting the history and culture of its practice.

Turtle Bay Exploration Park has offered us a building site within the McConnell Arboretum & Gardens. This partnership with Turtle Bay will bring our community a project that blends art, nature, and physical exercise that is available to people of all ages and abilities. It will be a place where people can practice Tai Chi or other low-impact meditative exercises in a peaceful setting.

PROJECT OVERVIEW

Artist's rendering of completed project

The Redding Tai Chi Meditation Garden will be in the McConnell Arboretum & Gardens at Turtle Bay Exploration Park in Redding, California. The site is opposite Charlotte's Bridge, a pleasant 10-minute walk from either the world-famous Sundial Bridge or from the western entrance of the McConnell Arboretum & Gardens.

The original design was prepared by Hsien-Yuan Chen for the David Chen Memorial Tai Chi court in Rockville, Maryland. With Mr. Chen's permission, we have used his design as a model for our Tai Chi court, which will be the only public Tai Chi court of this design in the western United States.

The 60-foot diameter hard surface will be in the design of the Yin Yang symbol, representing the balance of complementary and opposing forces in nature. In the Chinese language this symbol is known as the "Tai Chi Diagram." It is from this symbol that the exercise of Tai Chi takes its name.

Operational expenses and maintenance costs are expected to be minimal. The layout is essentially a large patio with a four-degree slope to help with drainage. Structural materials, finishes, and installation choices will be selected to retain beauty and to resist damage or deterioration.

The Redding Tai Chi Meditation Garden will be a regional asset enjoyed and appreciated by Tai Chi practitioners as well as those engaged in Yoga, Qi Gong, dance, and other low-impact activities.

ABOUT OUR LOGOS

"Most people don't see the turtle at first..."

The Redding Tai Chi Meditation Garden will be located in the McConnell Arboretum & Gardens at Turtle Bay Exploration Park. With that in mind, the designer of our logo incorporated the most prominent feature of the park - the Sundial Bridge and paired it with the Yin Yang symbol. In Chinese the correct name for the Yin Yang symbol is the "Tai Chi Diagram." It is this symbol from which the exercise of Tai Chi takes its name.

But there is more to our logo. The Yin Yang symbol is typically composed of matching halves with an "S-shaped" line between them. However, in our logo, the white segment has morphed into the head of a turtle and the darker part becomes its shell. You will also see that there are three legs below and a small tail. Most people don't see the turtle at first, but once you know about it, you can't help but see it. Our logo design is a clever combination of the Sundial Bridge, the Tai Chi symbol, and a turtle representing Turtle Bay Exploration Park.

The Redding Tai Chi logo illustrates the idea of complementary opposites, the foundation of the Tai Chi exercise. The colors of black and white are the traditional colors that represent the Tai Chi symbol from which the exercise takes its name. The Chinese characters for Tai Chi Chuan (Pinyin: Taiji Quan) and a person stepping out in the Tai Chi movement known as "Single Whip" suggest the movement and the origins of the exercise. The logos for Redding Tai Chi and the Redding Tai Chi Meditation Garden are the creation of artist and Industrial Designer Hannah Grgich.
